2013

FROM OUR BOARD CHAIR

The kennels at the Nebraska Humane Society are filled with stories of cats and dogs who have found their way to our shelter. Some were lost, some were abandoned and some never really had a home to begin with. It is sad to think of what brought these animals to the shelter, but it is a relief knowing that a new chapter in their story is just beginning.

The staff and volunteers at the Nebraska Humane Society are amazing. They do everything they can to give a second chance to these pets, knowing that for some it won't be enough. And their hearts break a little each time they bid a humane goodbye to those too ill to be saved. Volunteers are at the shelter all hours of the day, making sure those needing a little extra attention have a friend to sit with or plenty of toys to play with. Foster families will bring thousands of animals into their homes throughout the year, providing a safe place to grow, heal, and trust the world around them. These animals have nowhere else to turn. But the people at the Nebraska Humane Society are on their side, working exhaustively to give each animal the treatment he or she deserves.

Many people are involved in these stories and each one of them plays a pivotal role. Those working and volunteering at the Nebraska Humane Society provide much needed care, but, without people like you, none of this would be possible. From the Board of Directors, the staff, the volunteers and especially the animals, thank you for helping us provide a second chance!

2013 Financial Summary

Thank you for your interest and support of the Nebraska Humane Society. Though our shelter is filled with passionate people who would love nothing more than to save each and every animal, we keep a keen eye focused on our resources, making the most of what we earn and raise. We work diligently to live within our means while striving to give animals a second chance at the life they deserve.

These charts illustrate our revenue and expense streams. We are proud to point out that the Nebraska Humane Society is well beyond the industry average for dollars actually spent on programming. It is crucial that our critical funding sources are focused on areas for the best possible outcomes for animal welfare.

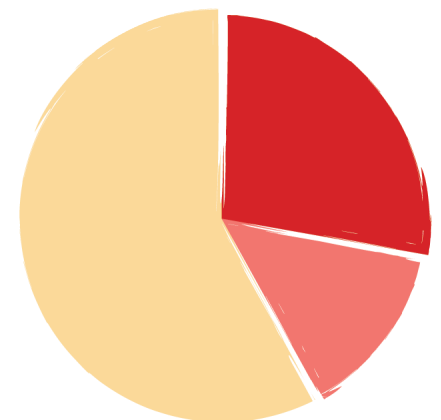

We are grateful for all our loyal friends and supporters. We vow to use your gifts wisely, delivering the best possible care to the homeless animals we serve.

PAWS FOREVER

By including the Nebraska Humane Society in your estate plans, you are creating your legacy – a legacy to help homeless animals receive a second chance at the life they deserve!

Planned gifts come in all sizes and are typically made through your will or by naming NHS as a beneficiary. By joining our Paws Forever Legacy Society, you will ensure the Nebraska Humane Society is always her for the animals who need us.

What a great legacy!

Companion animals served in 2013

The Nebraska Humane Society is unique among animal shelters. In addition to taking animals whose owners can no longer care for them, we provide animal control services for the Omaha Metro area. That means we are the facility that houses all animals with nowhere else to go. We don't pick and choose who enters. Instead we offer clean kennels, warm beds, loving hearts and kind hands to every abandoned, stray and lost animal who arrives at our door. We also quarantine animals who are aggressive or who have bitten, provide a safe place for victims of cruelty and neglect, and offer temporary sanctuary for animals who have been given up by their owners. But not all of these animals can be safely placed back into the community. We fix those who we can and euthanize those beyond our repair.

We are proud to say that we have not had to euthanize a healthy, adoptable dog, for lack of space, in several years. We have, in fact, continued to push to rehabilitate and adopt out more animals with mild to complex and expensive medical conditions, as well as dogs with minor behavior challenges. With help from a "special needs fund" we continue to fix even more medically challenged dogs and adopt more with chronic medical issues.

For cats the story is not as happy. Cats are a major challenge for every shelter in the country, due to their overwhelming numbers. In recent years we have worked with the community on a limited trap/neuter/release program, fostered thousands of kittens in private homes, utilized PetSmarts and veterinary offices to house and adopt cats, and we have expanded our cat kenneling area. Still, at times, we run out of space. For the past several summers we have slashed our adoption fees, and have held fee-waived, "free cat" weekends, to help incentivize our community to adopt. You, our community, continue to respond paving the way to continue this lifesaving practice.

We are proud of what we have accomplished together. Because of you we save many more lives than the national average for animal control facilities. From the animals whose lives you have helped save, thank you! It takes a community to save every life possible.

99.9% of dogs euthanized had serious medical issues or behavior issues such as aggression or extreme fear. The remaining percentage point were those we might have been able to work with had we had unlimited resources.*

Our challenge with cats is much greater. Cat owners, clearly, don't reclaim cats at the same rate as dog owners do, and our community faces continual free roaming cat overpopulation. Still, 76% of cats euthanized had serious medical or behavioral issues which made them unadoptable.

The Nebraska Humane Society touches the lives of more than 25,000 animals each year. The vast majority is made up of dogs and cats whose statistics are represented above. NHS also takes in and works to rehome wildlife, pocket pets like hamsters and guinea pigs, barnyard buddies like horses and potbellied pigs and even the occasional chicken or rooster.
